

Katina Davidson

Seek: and you may not necessarily find

10 June- 21 June 2014

Opening event: 6pm, Friday 13 June

This solo exhibition of new work by Katina Davidson presents laborious studies of the contemporary landscape that observe the natural world through an arithmetical filter.

Seek: and you may not necessarily find reveals an intimate study with the primary concern of negotiating a connection to Country when removed in an urban environment.

The works embody the narratives of being lost and the perpetual search by struggling to find a common ground between the masculine and the feminine; suburbia and escapism; minimalist ideology and the decorative. Through combining materials such as oil paint, the act of stitching and other media, the works seek to explore the symptoms and products of the collision of these dichotomies.

Woolloongabba Art Gallery upstairs

613 Stanley St
Woolloongabba
Queensland 4102

Open: Tuesday to Saturday, 9am- 5pm

<http://katinadavidson.tumblr.com> | k.m.davidson@hotmail.com

Image: Flee (detail), 2014, thread and oil on Belgian linen

