

STEPHEN NOTHLING

Home and Away

I was intrigued with the carpet in the hotel my son Charlie and I stayed in while in Edinburgh. The Chilean 'monkey puzzle' tree growing oddly and majestically on the Isle of Skye. The image of the man on the Irn-Bru can of soft drink. Our backyard banana tree that bore fruit that never ripened and then fell over. Stained glass windows. A coffee mug with van Gogh's Sunflowers. The succulents that my partner Deirdre tends on the back landing. Blue Poles at the NGA that seemed like a fake version of Blue Poles but it wasn't. Medieval portraiture and painting. Experiencing a major flooding event in December that took ages to resolve. Being bitten by a mosquito and contracting Ross River Virus that is taking ages to resolve. Cyclone Alfred smashing the jacaranda tree causing considerable havoc. An abundance of avocados. The fish printed on Sirena tuna tins, Annalisa tomato cans, Ayam coconut milk tins. All sorts of tins with images printed on them. The roses from the Titanic Memorial Garden in Greenwich, roses from New Farm Park, roses from Harris Farm Markets in West End. The childhood houses where the Beatles lived in Liverpool and Torbreck atop Highgate Hill that I walk past almost every day. There's more, there's less, there's more.

Home and Away.
